Now, with electric assist from a Protanium front hub, it's a real Pedelec, opening up an even wider variety of uses – for example, for long, sweat-free commutes to work. The special highlight of this model, however, is Hase's new foldable fairing. It can be mounted in less than a minute and is adjustable to the size of the rider.

The functional material is of ripstop quality, ultralight, extremely durable, and – thanks to impregnation and polyacrylate coating – waterproof. The fairing can be quickly removed, folded to a manageable size and stowed away in the Hase luggage bag.

As with all specially developed Hase products, the technical brilliance lies in the details: The fairing is mounted using special push-in connectors, requiring no tools. The design is aerodynamic and even diverts rain away from the rider's head when traveling at higher speeds.

In terms of handling, this weather-ready speedster is identical to the beloved cornering machine Kettwiesel, meaning: outstanding riding dynamics and mind-blowing fun with all the safety of a well-engineered trike.

Heads-up for speed demons: Hase is already at work on an S-class KLIMAX: A powerful 500-watt motor will propel this climate protector at speeds of up to 45 km/h (28 mph).

No straining either. From cross-country touring to daily commuting to world speed records, Easy Racers has been the leader in recumbent design for over 22 years. And now with the EZ-Series line of recumbents, designed by Gardner Martin, the doors have opened up for entry
